

6. Extreme Form

Darter / Anhinga (Anhinga anhinga)

Attribute - Swims underwater without ripples

Among birds, the anhinga is the best fresh-water diver. It goes down quietly without any ripple. It has a long, straight bill and a Z-kink in its neck. The tail is long, made up of 12 wedge-shaped quill feathers, and it accounts for its nickname, "water turkey or Snake bird." It has webbed feet. It spears fish with its long beak. The Anhinga does not have oil glands for waterproofing its feathers like most water birds.

Few member countries, namely Congo, Chad, Gabon and Centrafricaine of ANU reissued this stamp by down-rating and an ovpt for XVIIth Olympics in the year 1960 at Rome, Italy

Gravure printed Die Card Carrying Embossed Seal

A Registered cover posted to Switzerland Tied with Perforated Yellow label marked R-120, FORT LAMY AE, (now N'D'Jamena) capital of Chad, and is a special salute region encompassing several districts.