

Hygrophorus russula

Edible but quality is not excellent, in many cases are prepared exclusively for the preservation in oil. It grows in the woods of broad-leaved trees, in particular oak.

Class: Agaricomycetes
Order: Agaricales
Family: Hygrophoraceae

Issue: Mushrooms 1999
 Bulgaria
Cancellation: Sofia
 27-07-1999. First day
Edition: not identified

Russula capensis

It has cap varies in color from pink-purple to red-purple. Typical of the territories of South Africa. Recognized as edible.

Class: Agaricomycetes
Order: Russulales
Family: Russulaceae

Issue: Mushrooms 1987
 Ciskei
Cancellation: eDongaba
 19-03-1987. First day
Edition: Hendlers

