

16 I Thank Mankind for taking care of me.

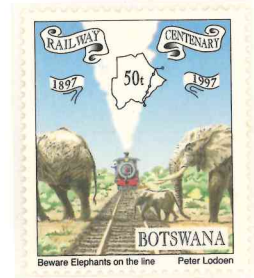

An initiative to save the Indian Elephants- Most of the elephants in India are killed in the act of crossing a road or railway line. Elephant Corridors - a narrow strip of land connecting two large habitats of elephants - are necessary to minimize elephant fatalities and helps in enhancing the species' survival and birth rate. Conservation of elephants could help maintain large forest tracts' biological diversity and ecological integrity – WWF works in this direction.
