The fragment containing 45 Italian stamps, each with a face value of 1.50 euro, making the total postage value of 67.5 euro. These stamps were issued in 2009 to commemorate the 65th Anniversary of the Carraresi Women Insurrection. In 1944, the women of Carrara, Italy, staged a peaceful protest against a German evacuation order. Despite arrests, their protest continued. This act exemplifies the crucial role of women in the Italian resistance during World War II, serving not only as combatants but also as messengers, quartermasters, and nurses.
